The Methodology

Data collection spanned from 2023-2024

Literature Review & Document Analysis

UN directives
Regional frameworks of QA and QF
Relevant research
Reports from international and regional organizations dealing with tertiary education and QA

Case Studies

Some regions also carried out case studies to delve deeper into unique practices

Baseline Data

Collected from 196 countries from diverse sources, sometimes through personal contacts with national regulators

Number of TEIs, QA bodies, recognized QA bodies, NQFs, signatories to UN Regional and Global Conventions

Surveys

Surveys addressed to TEIs and QA bodies
Administered in seven languages
989 responses from TEIs
241 responses from QA bodies
99 countries represented

Focus Group Discussions

34 focus groups were conducted: 17 with EQABs and 17 with TEIs

82 countries across 7 regions

277 participants: EQA (130) and IQA of TEIs (147) participated in the focus groups

Focus groups were conducted in three languages: English, Spanish, French

Acknowledgements

Special thanks go to the UNESCO IESALC Higher Education Office - Prof Francesc Pedro in specific - for authoring and co-authoring chapters, sharing rich expertise that ensured a robust balance in terms of the expectations from quality assurance and its critical role in promoting qualifications recognition regionally and internationally.

II Global Trends was profoundly strengthened by the expertise and critical insights of Prof. Kevin Kinser (Pennsylvania State University), whose invaluable contributions brought depth and clarity to internal quality assurance perspectives and enriched the discourse on tertiary education globally.

Particular gratitude goes to the AQU Catalunya Knowledge Generation Department team - Dr. Núria Mancho and Dr. José Luis Mateos - for their support in data management and analyses, including translations and question configuration as well as carrying out analyses at the regional levels.

Acknowledgements

Undoubtedly, the INQAAHE Board, under the lead of its current President Vicky Stott and Immediate Past President Deb Adair, merit acknowledgement for their exceptional support throughout the whole study.

Special recognition is given to INQAAHE secretariat for their tireless efforts throughout the whole study, hence outstanding contributions.

In specific, the authors express gratitude for the financial and in-kind support from INQAAHE, which allowed for an open-access publication, thus broadening its reach and potentials for impact.
